

🌐 View in Google Maps (<https://maps.google.com/maps?q=39.735575,-104.986896>)

Colorado assayers with a variety of products including chemicals, mining equipment and supplies, and clay crucibles under the name Denver Fire Clay. The Denver Fire Clay Co. at 31st and Blake Streets was incorporated in 1880, with Bosworth as president, and much of the company's early production was of fire-resistant bricks for the construction of smelters. In 1890, Bosworth was killed in an explosion at the Denver Fire Clay Co. store on Larimer Street, and his widow continued the business and in 1895 opened a retail store for the company at 1742 Champa Street. By 1921, the company had added branch offices in Salt Lake City, Utah and New York, N.Y. In 1937, the Denver Fire Clay Co. building on Larimer Street burned and the retail srned down, and the retail store was closed. The building was then sold to Buerger Brothers

Accession #2014.1.

Denver Clay Co. photographs collection, Ph.00497, History Colorado, Denver, Colo

History Colorado may not own copyright to this collection

View this description in WorldCat.

Schott, Robert W.,.
History Colorado

Business enterprises

Business enterprises -- Employees

Entreprises

Entreprises -- Personnel

Photographies

Photographs

Denver Fire Clay Co. \(Denver, Colo.\).
Photographs

Colorado -- Denver